

Notes on contributors / Biobibliographies

ANNIE BENOIT completed a B.A. (Honours) in Psychology at Bishop's University in 2007. She is currently working on her Master's degree in Community Health at the Université de Sherbrooke. She is employed as a research agent for diverse research projects on workplace stress, women's health and parenting.

SARAH BLUMEL has a B.A. in Social Work from McGill University. She has extensive experience working with community groups as participants, volunteers and staff. At the Centre for Community Organizations (www.coco-net.org) they focus on capacity-building with groups in areas such as conflict resolution and effective communication, fundraising, planning and evaluation and community-based research.

CLAUDE CHARPENTIER received her Ph.D. in Psychology from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and teaches in the Department of Psychology at Bishop's University. Her most recent research activities include an assessment of the need for English-language mental health services for Estrie's English-speaking community, and an exploration of the psychosocial factors influencing people's attitudes toward immigrants.

JOSIANE COURTEAU possède un doctorat en mathématiques appliquées et travaille au sein du groupe de recherche PRIMUS (centre de recherche clinique Étienne-Le Bel du CHUS) depuis 1997 en tant qu'assistante scientifique de recherche.

PATRICK DONOVAN is currently a Ph.D. student in the Department of History at Université Laval. He was closely involved in the preparation of the 2010 Acfas colloquium on English-Speaking Communities of Quebec.

CATHERINE DROUIN est étudiante au doctorat en sciences cliniques (santé communautaire) à l'Université de Sherbrooke. Elle travaille au sein du groupe de recherche PRIMUS (Centre de recherche clinique Étienne-Le Bel du CHUS).

ROGER FARLEY est directeur administratif du Bureau d'appui aux communautés de langue officielle de Santé Canada depuis 2005. À ce titre, il a été le promoteur de plusieurs recherches sur la santé et les communautés de langue officielle en situation minoritaire, dont la section santé de l'Enquête sur la vitalité des minorités de langue officielle et celle, plus récente, sur les professionnels de la santé en milieu minoritaire.

RACHEL GARBER has worked at Townshippers' Association during the past ten years, first as Assistant Executive Director and then as Executive Director. She has a B.Sc. in Communications, a B.A. in Fine Arts, and an M.A. in Art Therapy. She has lived in the Eastern Townships for 15 years, after 22 years in Montreal.

DONALD W. DE GUERRE is an Associate Professor in the Department of Applied Human Science at Concordia University. He teaches graduates and undergraduates in the domains of human systems intervention and action research in organizations and communities. His scholarly interests are the development of participative democratic governance and organization.

CHERYL GOSSELIN, Ph.D., currently teaches in Bishop's University's Department of Sociology. She is also a chair of Eastern Townships Resource Centre (ETRC).

ROGER GUILLEMETTE est directeur adjoint des politiques et de l'analyse au Bureau d'appui aux communautés de langue officielle de Santé Canada depuis 2005. Il développe des connaissances sur les besoins en santé ainsi que des données probantes pour améliorer les programmes en appui aux communautés linguistiques en situation minoritaire.

DENIS LEROUX détient un doctorat en géographie de l'Université d'Ottawa et est professeur à l'Université du Québec à Trois-Rivières depuis 1995. Il est également chercheur associé au Centre de recherche clinique Étienne-Le Bel du Centre hospitalier universitaire de Sherbrooke. Il est spécialisé en géomatique et s'intéresse particulièrement à la géographie de la santé.

HUGH MAYNARD is a consulting specialist and owner of Qu'anglo Communications & Consulting, an enterprise with a focus on communications, strategic planning and development initiatives for the agricultural and agri-environmental sectors, and for rural communities. In a community context, Hugh has served on the board of the Quebec Association for Adult Learning for the past six years and has been a representative of numerous community organizations including a school board and a career education centre.

CHRISTOPHER PHILIP recently completed an Honours Degree in Psychology at Bishop's University.

ÉDITH POULIN is currently studying at Bishop's University, where she is undertaking a double major in Psychology and Modern Languages.

LORRAINE O'DONNELL, Ph.D., is a Coordinator-Researcher of Quebec English-Speaking Communities Research Network (QUESCREN).

GABRIELA ORZANCO détient un Ph.D. en Sciences géomatiques et a fait des études en écologie, environnement et santé environnementale. Au sein du groupe Primus elle a travaillé sur les inégalités de santé des immigrants à Montréal, sur le choix de carrière des étudiants de médecine et sur l'épidémiologie des fractures de la hanche au Québec.

FRANCES RAVENSBERGEN, Ph.D., has 35 years of experience working in the community sector, including 14 years working as a community organizer and branch director for the Montreal YMCA. She was a founding member of COCo as well as a co-director from 2000–2005. Currently, she focuses on facilitation for planned change processes (including strategic planning), community-based research, and organizational management and change. Her doctoral thesis looked at the role of community organizations in social change work. She also teaches community-related courses at Concordia University.

DANIEL SÉGUIN works at the intersection of design, insight and engagement. The current focus of his work is designing learning spaces in which individuals, groups, communities and organizations create their desirable future. Dan invites people to answer their own questions by being in meaningful relationships that catalyze a deep inquiry leading to action.

DALE STOUT is a Professor at Bishop's University and teaches in the Psychology Department. Although his research interests are centered on the history of psychology and statistics, his research in the past few years has become more community-based. Dr. Stout not only engages in but encourages his students to develop research that will contribute to a better understanding of our Eastern Townships communities.

ALAIN VANASSE, M.D., Ph.D., FCMF étudie principalement les inégalités sociales et géographiques concernant les maladies chroniques et les troubles de santé mentale, avec un intérêt pour les soins de première ligne. Il a notamment développé un atlas interactif destiné aux services d'aide à la décision dans le domaine de la santé publique.

SARAH WILKINS LAFLAMME est doctorante en sociologie à l'Université d'Oxford en Grande-Bretagne. Sa thèse de maîtrise, réalisée à l'Université d'Ottawa, portait sur le rapport identitaire qu'entretiennent les anglophones du Québec avec les Églises unie, anglicane et catholique. Ses recherches actuelles comparent les transformations du paysage religieux canadien avec celles des États-Unis, de la Grande-Bretagne et de l'Europe depuis 1985.

PAUL ZANAZANIAN, an educationalist with a background in history, is currently a postdoctoral fellow at Université Laval. His main research interests focus on the workings of teachers' and students' historical consciousness in the development of ethno-cultural, civic, and national identities as well as in constructions of social reality.
