

Notes on contributors / Biobibliographies

CAROLINE BEAUDOIN is a doctoral student and part-time faculty member at Concordia University's Department of Art History. Her current research interests include landscape issues and theories, social history, and cultural studies. She is the recipient of a Canadian SSHRC Doctoral Fellowship and a Quebec Bourse de doctorat en recherche from the FRSCQ.

ANTHONY DI MASCIO is assistant professor in the School of Education at Bishop's University. His current major project, funded by the Fonds de recherche du Québec – Société et culture, involves an examination of cross-border education in the Eastern Townships and Northern Vermont during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

NEAL DUFFY is professor at SUNY Plattsburgh and a member of the Department of Economics and Finance since 1982. He earned his PhD at West Virginia University (1983) and his BA at Rutgers University (1977). His primary research interest is the regional growth of manufacturing.

PREM GANDHI, PhD (1973), is SUNY Distinguished Professor and the past dean of the School of Business and Economics at Plattsburgh. A founding member of the Canadian Studies Program, he has been a recipient of several faculty development programs and has made presentations on U.S. and Canada at several universities in North and South America and in India. His teaching, research and publications have focused on Canada-U.S. Trade and Investment. His current interest is on the impact of security measures on Canadian-U.S. economic interactions.

CHRISTOPHER KIRKEY is Director of the Center for the Study of Canada at State University of New York College at Plattsburgh where he holds a concurrent position as full professor of political science. He also holds an appointment as Adjunct Associate Professor at the School of International and Public Affairs at Columbia University, and formerly served as Associate Professor of Political Science and Canadian Studies at Bridgewater State College. He holds a B.A. Honours and Master of Arts (Queen's University), a Ph.D. in Politics from Brandeis University, serves on the editorial boards of Canadian Foreign Policy and the American Review of Canadian Studies, and served as Mine Action Scholar-in-Residence at the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade.

CHERYL GOSSELIN, Ph.D., is associate professor in the Sociology Department at Bishop's University where she has been teaching for the past 22 years. She is very active in the English-speaking communities of Quebec, especially the Eastern Townships region, through her research and participation in community organizations. She has presented papers on English-speaking women and employment at conferences and she helped organize three conferences on the ESCQ at the annual Congrès de l'Association canadienne francophonie pour le savoir (Acfas) along with Lorraine O'Donnell from the Quebec English-speaking Communities Research Network (QUESCREN). She has been working with Amanda Pichette for the last three years on the Institutional Vitality Research Project (IVRP) and presented with her at the 2012 Congrès de l'Acfas. She is president of the Eastern Townships' Resource Centre and serves on the governing boards of Quebec Community Groups Network (QCGN) and Townshippers' Association.

AMANDA PICHETTE received her MA in Educational Studies from Concordia University. She is currently teaching in the Sociology Department at Bishop's University. Her research focuses on identity and belonging within Quebec society among majority/minority populations. The Institutional Vitality Research Project (IVRP) is an on-going research initiative supported in part by the Quebec Community Groups Network (QCGN) that examines the vitality of the English-speaking communities in Quebec. She has been working with Cheryl Gosselin for the last three years on the IVRP and presented with her at the 2012 Congrès de l'Acfas and the Bishop's colloquium in March 2013.

JODY ROBINSON, a native of the Eastern Townships, obtained her Bachelor of Arts in History from Bishop's University. She went on to pursue Master's studies in History at the Université de Sherbrooke and graduated in 2012 after completion of her thesis, titled "The loveliest lake in the New Dominion': Montreal villégiateurs on Lake Memphremagog, 1860–1914." Jody has been the archivist at the Eastern Townships Resource Centre since 2006.

ALEX TREMBLAY a obtenu sa maîtrise en histoire de l'Université Laval. Détenteur d'une bourse Vanier, il complète présentement un doctorat en histoire dans la même institution sous la direction de Donald Fyson. Ses recherches portent sur les relations entre les anglophones et les francophones au sein des élites québécoises au XIX^e siècle.